

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND HUMANITIES

DEPARTMENT OF LANGUAGES, TRANSLATION AND COMMUNICATION

Languages for All

2015 – 2016

If you want to work, study or travel abroad, language skills can help you to do this. When you apply for jobs, languages skills can be a bonus, setting you apart from other candidates. This applies to programming languages, too.

“Coding for All” – learn how to programme computers using the Python programming language. Python is user-friendly and widely used in a great variety of applications. No previous experience is needed. Python coders are in huge demand from employers; coding is a key skill for many careers.

LFA modules are available in Arabic, Mandarin Chinese, French, German, Italian, Spanish and Welsh – plus the new “Coding for All” for Beginner levels (1) and (2).

LFA language modules equip you with practical skills in reading, writing, listening and speaking, allowing you to use the language effectively in everyday situations.

LFA language modules are offered at four levels of competency according to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR):

LFA1	Beginner (1)	A.1	CEFR
LFA2	Beginner (2)	A1	CEFR
LFA3	Intermediate Learner (1)	A2.1	CEFR
LFA4	Intermediate Learner (2)	A2	CEFR

Modules are worth 10 credits and last for one teaching block, with 2 contact hours per week. Assessment is by two class tests, there are no final examinations.
