

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND HUMANITIES
MODERN LANGUAGES, TRANSLATION AND INTERPRETING
Languages for All
2018 – 2019

If you want to work, study or travel abroad, language skills can help you to do this. When you apply for jobs, languages skills can be a bonus, setting you apart from other candidates.

Many degree programmes at Swansea University allow students to take an optional module outside their main discipline as part of their programme of study. Languages for All (LFA) modules are worth 10 credits and last for one teaching block, with 2 contact hours per week.

LFA modules are for learners with no previous knowledge of the language and will equip you with practical skills, allowing you to use the language effectively in everyday situations. Courses are available in Arabic, French, German, Italian, Mandarin Chinese, Spanish and Welsh.

Before you apply for an optional language module, you should check with your Department that your programme of study allows you to take a language module for credits.
